

DR. JAMIE GRIGSBY
DENVER, CO

MM, (University of Colorado/Boulder), Doctor of Physical Therapy, University of Denver (Certified)

Biography:

Jamie Grigsby received a Masters Degree in piano performance from the University of Colorado under the study of Alvin Chow and Andrew Cooperstock, and graduated with honors with a Bachelor of Music in piano performance from the University of Iowa. She has completed the certificate program for injury-preventive technique with Barbara Lister-Sink through Continuing Studies at Salem College. She currently teaches private piano lessons in Westminster and claims the boasting rights of helping many prospering young pianists achieve their musical goals. She is an active performer and accompanist in the Denver Metro area, and has also served as lead accompanist at the Presbyterian Church of Broomfield since 2012. Jamie is a member of Music Teachers National Association (MTNA), Colorado State Music Teachers Association (CSMTA), and Broomfield, CO Music Teachers Association (BMTA).

Jamie is also looking to expand her work with injured musicians into the health profession. She graduated in May, 2016 from the University of Colorado School of Medicine with a degree as a Doctor of Physical Therapy. Her intent is to reach from the health profession into the music world in order to help injured musicians and to help prevent potential injury amongst musicians.